points out, "as well as a licensing official, and keeper of the contracts."

She must monitor all ordinances and resolutions and keep the governing body — in this case Township Committee — informed of issues that affect it.

She must also keep the minutes of Committee meetings, copies of all resolutions and ordinances. "The state mandates specific retention times for every kind of document — in every department," she notes, "but even so, municipalities have to apply to the state for permistrative in the state of the contracts."

Last week, Joe Falco, a representative from the Division of Archives, visited the Township to "help us destroy in the Joss put it. think this is really the kind of position I'm suited for. I'm detail oriented, and I like managing an office." Her decision to retire was prompted partly by health problems and partly by the fact that her husband, Richard Shuss, recently retired from his position as adminis-trator and chief financial officer of Upper Saddle River Consent Agenda Over the years, Ms. Shuss has streamlined the way in which Township Committee meetings were conducted. She was responsible for developing the "consent agenda," a list of items on the regular meeting schedule that doesn't need discussion and can be disposed of with a single vote.

In 1991, Ms. Shuss also initiated the practice of an "agenda meeting," in which the mayor, administrator, clerk, financial officer, engineer, and Township attorney met to develop an agenda prior to the actual meeting.

Before she started the practice, she said, "The administrator would develop the agenda, copy relevant materials, and send everything to me. That's usually how it's done, but life is too hectic for the administrator's office to do it."

This way, the clerk's office gets a head start on the process; and the administrator is also relieved of some pressure.

After the Mercer Oak lost its battle with wind and time in March of this year, one of the tree's offspring was planted in its place. Now, some four months later, Princeton Battlefield Superintendent Jim Apffel said the new tree has been cared for and watered properly, but whether it will take strong root will not be known until the spring.

The ten-foot-high oak is one of four of the historic Mercer Oak's offspring scattered around Battlefield Park. If this one does not succeed, plans are to replace it with one of the others, said Mr. Apffel.

The three-centuries-old Mercer Oak split down the mid-dle on a Friday in early March. On the next day, it was carted off in pieces by arborists and by others who wanted

The tree survived the Battle of Princeton on January 3, 1777, and according to legend, gave shade to fatally wounded Revolutionary General Hugh Mercer, for whom Mercer County is named.

Mercer County is named.

The legend is explained in full on a plaque in front of the little tree. It is, however, the same plaque that stood before the 300-year-old Mercer Oak. This leads to some confusion. One recent visitor looked totally puzzled until it was explained to her that the plaque, which says the white oak is believed to have been here at the time of the American Revolution, referred to an earlier tree. Until she found this out, the only sense she could make of the information before her was that the tree had aged so much that it had shriveled.

BONDING WITH YOUR DENTIST

The cosmetic procedure known as bonding has proved itself to be the most cost-effective way of covering stained teeth, closing gaps, and altering chipped or crooked teeth. The results are both long-lasting (five years or so) and aesthetically pleasing. The relatively fast and simple procedure begins with etching the surface of the tooth to be treated with a mild acid solution. This allows for better adherence of a thin coating of colorantehed composite resin that coats stains and irregularities and fills in spaces. A special light is then used to harden the plastic coating, which is sculpted and polished to match the other teeth. The entire process can be conducted during one office visit. Bonding offers immediate

The Mercer County Prosecutor's office has sent a memorandum to all police chiefs in the ounty urging police to advocate that their governing bodies and municipal attorney enact ocal laws that give police the authority to arrest unchaperoned, underage drinkers on private property.

A new state law, approved in June, allows municipalities to adopt such ordinances, as long as they include exemptions for religious ceremonies and drinking that takes place under the supervision of parents or legal guardians.

"The wehicle is in place for the municipalities to [adopt the ordinance], but is up to the councils and municipal attorneys to make it into a working law," according to Charles E. Waldron, first assistant prosecutor for Mercer County.

Teachers' Professional Courses

Under legislation sponsored by state Sens, William E. Schluter (R.-Pennington) and Robert J. Martin (R.-Morris Plains), teachers who do not satisfy a new professional development requirement would risk the loss of their teaching licenses. The requirement mandates that teachers pursue 100 hours of professional development during every five-year period, starting this year.

The NJ School Boards Association backs the Schluter/Martin legislation, which also defines the types of activities that count toward the 100 hours and gives school officials veto power over teachers who seek to pursue professional development classes during the school day.

A spokesman for the NJ Education Association said the teachers' union believes that bill s misguided and premature.

Dorm Sprinkler Systems

Several New Jersey schools have already installed sprinkler systems in all dorm rooms, eight months after a fatal fire in a Seton Hall University dormitory. A state law, inspired by the fire, requires every dorm room in the state to be covered by the automatic firefighting system.

Even before the bill became law, Rutgers, Rowan University in Glassboro, William Paterson University in Wayne, and Seton Hall announced plans to put sprinklers in all or some dorm rooms by September.

On Thursday, William Paterson University completed its installation; and the College of New Jersey and the NJ Institute of Technology have nearly finished theirs.

The state will notify all schools of the law's details sometime in November, according to a spokesman for the NJ Department of Community Affairs. Once the regulations are posted, schools must provide the state with a work schedule. They will have four years to install a sprinkler in every room. The state has provided $90 million to help pay for the sprinklers.

Extension of Meter Hours Will Disrupt Lives Of Those Who Live in Downtown Princeton

To the Editor of Town Topics: The following is a copy of a letter sent to Princeton Borough Council Members:

We are writing this letter on behalf of a group of residents of downtown Princeton who have not been able to attend Council meetings due to business and vacation travel.

We realize the proposed changes to meter rates and hours in Princeton Borough represent an honest attempt to deal with parking and budget issues. However, Carl Peters' plan, designed to open more spaces, increase turnover, and motivate business employees to park away from the CBD core, will have a serious negative effect on those of us who actually live downtown.

Increased meter rates are not our preference, yet, we can live with them if need be. However, an extension of hours to eight o'clock on weeknights and (especially) to Sunday will wreak havoc with our lives. The eight o'clock rule will be disruptive for anyone who arrives home before six o'clock since meter feeding is illegal. Even if feeding were permitted, the extra financial burden would fall squarely on the residents' wallets who, without off-street driveways and garages, would shell out another $300 per year just for that one extra hour. Plus we would still have to race back to our cars every couple of hours every night. On Sunday, as soon as businesses open, the proposed longer term meters on surrounding streets will be quickly filled by local employees and tourists. Since those groups far outnumber the amount of spaces, our pain will not be eased at all. We, along with family and friends, will now be enslaved to the meters every day of the week (plus another minimum $250 yearly cost to each resident). Even if a space can be found, are we to ask elderly parents, pregnant daughters, friends bearing gifts, and others to walk several blocks from their car to our home? Are we ourselves to carry groceries, packages, luggage, etc. In rain and snow? Would you?

Whenever there's a budget shortfall, official eyes look to easily enacted parking rate increases and extension of hours. We believe this is no longer a viable course of action.

whenever there's a budget shortain, which eyes ook to easily enacted parking rate increases and extension of hours. We believe this is no longer a viable course of action. Mayor Reed's attempts to find more creative short-term solutions are a step in the right direction. In addition, the Council needs to develop and act on long term plans that serve residents as well as business owners and their customers.

Despite your good intentions, if you support this plan as it now stands, we believe you can't possibly understand the tremendous impact these changes will have on us or you wouldn't even consider extending meter hours. Just regulations are ones that address such issues as parking and budget while demonstrating compassion for community members. It may be simply a matter of money to some of you ("a dime to a meter on Sunday is a dime less that the taxpayers pay"), however, it's very much a quality of life Issue for us. It's something we feel very passionate about. It's why we moved here, why we stay here, and why Princeton still has a vital downtown when so many other communities do not.

We urge you to take our concerns seriously and not

Thank You for Unearthing the Story Of a "Secret Garden" on Leigh Avenue

To the Editor of Town Topics:

How delightful to read Myrna Bearse's article about the "secret garden" on Leigh Avenue [TOWN TOPICS, August 23]. I have passed that house many times and often wondered what beautiful "garden mysteries" might lie beyond

For all of us who love gardens and gardening, it is a pleasure to learn how others are working the earth and making the most of Princeton's summer season. We are indeed lucky to have a reporter like Ms. Bearse, who is so receptive to the individual people who make our community special by their joy of living here.

There Are Many On-Line Resources To Help in Tracking Down Lost Pets

To the Editor of Town Topics: Bernie found!

Several weeks ago, distraught over losing our energetic Jack Russell Terrier, I wrote a letter [TOWN TOPICS, August 16] alerting pet owners and neighbors about "lost" pets and what each can do to mitigate the loss and time spent recovering one. I say "lost" because it appears, as I had suspected, Bernie was taken after she wandered away a month ano.

At 6 a.m. Monday we unexpectedly received a call from a woman in Trenton stating she had purchased Bernie off the street for her son, but we could get her back if we reimbursed her for what she paid. Upon arrival we were reunited with Bernie, who was still wearing her collar and identifica-

Thankfully, Bernie seems to have been well cared for during her month's vacation and totally oblivious to the consternation her disappearance caused everyone.

I write this so not only all the kind strangers, neighbors, customers of Patio World Fireplace & Hearth, veterinarians, animal shelters and animal control people we were in contact with can know of our happy ending, but to those who may experience a lost pet there are many web sites aiding in the assistance of lost and found pets. They provide desperate pet owners a forum to describe the circumstances behind their loss, as well as a description of their pet. Likewise, thoughtful and caring people who find animals can leave descriptions and phone numbers.

On one site, I saw that a Jack Russell Terrier fitting Bernie's description in Jacksonville, Florida — who knows, Bernie could have hopped in with a truck driver — was found. The gentleman posted a picture in our email. I also wanted to update those who expressed interest in the microchip that is inserted into a pet's skin. West Trenton Animal Hospital provides this service locally. Finally, as we got a phone call from a woman offended by our placement of a poster on a pole near her personal property, we apologize for any upset to her or anyone else. Cruelty Leads to Violent Crimes; Bowhunting Is Cruelty to Animals

To the Editor of Town Topics:

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Chiselled razor edge, a gleaming steel arrow undauntingly whirs in its flight, hissing past trees on its relentless course, exploding into the side of an unsuspecting deer, plunging deep into its body. Designed to maim not kill, the nefarious perpetrator can then stalk his prey with a passion worthy of Jack the Ripper.

Such scenes will be commonplace throughout New Jersey beginning September 9. An early bow and arrow season will even include features on arrow heads that open up inside the animal and are called fast acting and HUMANE by those who use them. Packaging prompts users to sharpen blades to increase hemorrhaging "for a quicker kill." The HUMANE treatment works this way.

The panicked animal then suffers intense pain for at

The panicked animal then suffers intense pain for The panicked animal then suffers interes pain joi tal least 20 minutes as it lopes through the woods until too weak to stand and bleeds to death. And those are the lucky ones. A bowhunter confessed that he refers to deer hit by arrows as "lollipops," an example of his deproved mentality. He then admitted that while the animal is still alive he cuts it open to reach inside and feel its beating alive he cuts it open to reach inside and feel its beating heart.

In large part the public is unaware of the promotion of bowhunting because, according the Division of Fish & Wildlife's own literature, the practice is characterized as secretive. In a written community based deer management policy statement Robert Lund writes that "the silence and limited range of the bow and arrow, and the cryptic nature of the bowhunter frequently allows bowhunting to be employed in many suburban sites where the use of firearms is not an option." In their endeavor to encourage the acceptance of bowhunting, Fish & Wildlife conjures up lurid images of individuals silently stalking deer with deadly weapons in the heart of middle class neighborhoods!

Bowhunters espouse their so-called sport as a time honored tradition handed down from father to son, but there are many traditions that have not found their way to our modern day world and rather than become a household word bowhunting, which encourages such sadistic behaviors as outlined above, should fall into extinction. Research has shown that those who engage in cruel treatment of animals are much more likely to commit violent crimes on people. Therefore, legislators should enact laws to prohibit bowhunting which emboldens dangerous people to commit cruel acts on animals and criminal behavior towards others.

Princeton Soccer, Defending Ivy Champion, Has Solid Opportunity to Repeat This Fall

he year 1999 was a break through year for coach Jim Barlow and the Princeton soccer team, and this fall the Tigers are looking to make their winning ways a trend and not an exception.

ways a trend and not an exception.

When Barlow took over the program in 1996, he won just one lvy contest finishing with a record of 1.4-2 in the league and 6.8-3, overall. The following two years, 1997 and 1998, Barlow's boys managed to win about half their lvy outings, ending smack on the .500 mark with an 8-8-1 mark both seasons.

Along came 1999, and Old Nassau, playing with just four seniors, exploded to an 11-5-2 record, and won the league with a mark of 5-1-1. The league title was its first since it shared the crown in 1993, but this one wasn't shared with anybody, the first time since Eisenhower was president the Orange and Black had accomplished that feat.

Eight starters return from a team that took a powerful Virginia squad into triple overtime before losing, 2-1. These Tigers would like another shot at the tournament.

Forwards Are Experienced

rinceton has two of the league's most experienced forwards in juniors Mike Nugent and Lucas Moskowitz. These combined for 11 goals and 27 points eason, and will be counted upon just as ch if not more this season...

Nugent was a first-team, all-lvy selection ast season, and led the team with eight another shot at the tournament.

"Obviously we felt great about the '99 season in every way," Barlow says. "Most importantly, we had great leadership. That is going to be the biggest thing that the 2000 team is going to have to figure out.

Even though it only had four members, the class of 2000 had two great leaders in captain Chad Adams and sweeper Griff Behnecke. Kevin Griffin and Greame Rein, this season's captains, will be called upon to fill the Adams-Behncke vold.

goals. Moskowitz scored three goals, one of which came in the NCAA tournament against Virginia. He brings a lot of experience and make plays from just about anywhere.

Fresh off helping Bill Tierney's lacrosse team to the NCAA championship game, Matt Striebel returns for his senior season. Streibel, who rejoins Nugent and Moskowitz up front, has already played in four NCAA tournament and has been on four lyy champions between the two sports.

Griffin, second-team all-lvu pick Matt

Griffin, second-team all-lvy pick Matt Behncke and senior Dan Osei add depth to the offense and should help create good scoring chances. They can score and make plays to set up goals.

Matt Douglas played up front as a reserve last year, picking up a goal and four assists in 17 games. He saw a lot of minutes as a freshman and could see more time this year.

The Tigers scored only 31 goals last year;

it will be up up this group to improve on those numbers. With the lvy League as strong as it is, Princeton will no doubt have to score more to repeat as lvy League

"We only gave up four goals in the league last year," Barlow says. "But we're hoping to figure out some more ways to score. I think we have the guys who can do it."

we have the guys who can do it."

Trying to secure the midfield is another top priority for Barlow. Several possible candidates could step in to fill the void left by the graduation of Brein Wassner and Walker Wright. Garrett Bartolotta and Will Rodgers return for the Tigers, and there is a strong group of freshmen. Honorable mention allly defender Bob Nye played midfield in the spring and could also help out.

Rookie of the Year

The core of the midfield, Behncke and Griffin, are both back this season. Behncke, who was the 1998 luy Rookie of the Year, scored goals in important games and totaled 13 points on the year, the second most on the team. Griffin added four assists last season and will provide leadership for the whole team. He, like Streibel, did a good job at sending balls in from the side last season.

Freshmen Matty Shaw and Gianfranco Tri-picchio have had a lot of experience playing at a high level and should contribute early. Pete Kingston, who was away for the spring semester, is back and might see some action in his junior year.

Rein will take on the responsibility for anchoring the defense. The Birmingham, Ala. native had a terrific sophomore campaign, earning second-team all-luy accolades and scoring two goals, both of which were luy game-winners. He had a good spring and the extremely differed at breaking up plays and and scoring were loy game, when he had a good spring and is extremely gifted at breaking up plays and winning balls in the air. Rein's passes out of the back give the Tigers a good start in their rush upfield.

A Great Job

ye also did a great job in the back last season and could be there again. He will best be known for clearing a ball off the goal line to preserve th

Yale game.

Benjy Diggs had a good spring and might contribute this fall. Batolotta played in the back last season and has the versatility to play a number of positions. Two freshmen, Jeff Hare and Chris White, have played on good club teams and will have a chance to crack the line-up. Sophomore Mike Castagna, who was injured most of last fall, had a good spring and will make a play for some time. Senior Andre Forrester will challenge for minutes in the back or even the midfield. Vince Vitale, Jason Extein, Brian Smith, Dan Zauber and Eric Fitzgerald could also find some playing time.

In hockey, another low-scoring sport, former Tiger coach Don Cahoon used to say, "We'll only be as good as our goalle. The same could apply to soccer as well. The emergence of sophomore Jason White as a star helped propel Princeton to the league title last year. White was a first-team all-livy selection and was the league's Rookie of the Week on four different occasions. He had a 0.62 goals-against-average in league games to lead the conference.

His eight shutouts tied the school season

His eight shutouts tied the school season record, a mark that was first set in 1942/ Following his final shutout — the scoreless te against Yale — White was named to Soccer America's Team of the Week.

ARE YOU READY FOR SOME FOOTBALL? Princeton High's foootball team is depending on the speed of senior running back Clyde Gaspard, left, and the arm of senior quarterback Andrew Caprariello, far right, to lead it through the 2000 season. Seniors Will Tisdale, second from left, and Jeff Montour, center, both co-captains, will be a significant factor on the offensive and defensive lines.

The number of football players at Princeton High School has increased from last season, and now the focus for second year coach Ray Strelecki and his team is to make sure the number of wins increases as well. It won't be hard to improve on the number of victories from the 1999 season, considering the Tigers finished with an overall record of 0-10.

Some memories are worth cherishing, but the memory of last season is one Strelecki and the team would rather forget. The Tigers lost by an average of 36 points, were shut out three times, and came close to victory only twice.

lost by an average of 36 points, were sturt out three times, and came close to victory only twice.

Putting Pieces Together

The pieces are still coming together for this young, talented team. If they are going to stop potent offenses in the Colonial Valley Conference this year, and if they're going to provide adequate protection for their quarterback, they'll have to replace a big piece of last year's puzzle, limenan Brian Lalli. He was a leader in the trenches, and his absence will be felt on both sides of the ball.

Gaspard Replaces Smith ining up behind Caprariello will be senior back Clyde Gaspard, replacing 1999 star tallback and co-captain Mataay Smith. Smith scored a touchdown in The View Senior of the Tiger's games last season. His offensive explosion will be a void that Gaspard has to fill quickly. The team will count on Gaspard's speed and agility throughout the season. He told TOWN TOPICS that he prefers to put last season behind him, and that he expects improvement and more victories during the 2000 campaign.

Coach Strelecki agreed. "We have a

Tisdale is expected to play offensive guard and linebacker. He was part of the 2000 PHS lacrosse team that finished with an impressive 17-1 record, so he knows what it takes to win. Other returning defensive players include senior Lee Ranallo, who will play offensive guard and linebacker, and junior Alex Conway, who will occupy the offensive and defensive tackle positions.

New Quarterback

The Tigers will have a new quarterback

Stepping in to fill that void will be senior co-captains Jeff Montour and Will Tisdale. Montour will play offensive guard and defensive tackle. His size will be a major force on ethe offensive side of the ball, and his defensive prowess will be enough to make running backs reverse direction.

The ball of guys feel good about themselves. Football is a sport where you need a lot of guys. The confidence level of the kids his year is a lot higher, and it's translating into their work at practice."

The Tigers will have a new quarterback under center this season. With the departure of Mike Bess after the 1999 campaign, senior quarterback Andrew Caprariello will now step in and direct the offense.

Caprariello will be looking for 1999 second team all-CVC senior wide receiver Bill Freeman as a primary target. He was a favorite target for Bess, scoring four touchdowns during the season.

The Tigers have the ability to beat opponents with the long ball, and the speed to break open a big play. The defense needs to improve, and the special teams must get between the speed to break open as graph of the speed to b

A new five-week workshop, LAFF with Rice Lyons, designed to make life a lot more fun, will meet at Redding Circle, starting September 14, from 1 to 2:30. The fee for the workshop, sponsored by the Princeton Senior Resource Center, will be $25.

Join the workshop for fun, companionship and laughter, as participants gather to play, to exercise, and to dance. Learn relaxation techniques, and graceful, gentle movements that help offset the harmful effect aging can have on the body. Boost the immune system with healing laughter, which acts as a balm for body and spirit. To register, call the Resource Center, at 924-7108.
